OUR DEAD HERO.

There will be pain in every American heart to-day at the announcement that Grant has laid down to rest forever and that naught but his memory remains for the people to love. Washington, Lincoln and Garfield have gone on before and their names are forever enshrined in the hearts of a free people, but for none of them will there be a more deep and abiding affection cherished than for the hero of the civil war, whose illustrious services in war and peace justly entitled him to be honored as the foremost citizen of the greatest nation of the world. He was a hero from the first to the last. He never murmured on the battlefield nor mourned on the deathbed, and despite the fact that he was the victim of a ruthless adventurer in his old age, and that his country too long delayed him justice, his great soul passed off into the unknown world beaming with smiles for his country and everybody in it.

The Special Committee of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, appointed February 22d, to examine the Chinese quarter and report upon its condition, reported at the meeting of the Board of Supervisors last Monday evening. The report has been printed, and forms a pamphlet of ninety-five pages. It is signed by Supervisors Farwell and Kunkler, who have faithfully discharged the duty imposed upon them, and have made the most complete report of Chinatown and its evils which has probably ever been given. The committee restricted their examination to the twelve blocks bounded by California, Kearny, Broadway and Stockton streets, where the greater portion of the Chinese population is found, although there is a considerable number of Mongolians west of Stockton street. The committee, or surveyors employed by them, visited every house within the district designated above, and upon the data obtained, prepared a report which demands the enforcement of the Kearney shibboleth "The Chinese Must Go!"

The San Francisco Bulletin says: "There is a vast amount of arid sagebrush land in Nevada which only needs irrigation to become highly productive. San Francisco capital might find a direct reward in putting water on those dry plains, and an indirect, but no less substantial gain, in developing the resources of a region tributary to this city and State."

A correspondent at Vienna says: Mr. Lee will take charge of the American Legation here until Autumn, when a new Minister will be appointed. Mr. Francis will present his letter of recall as soon as the Emperor returns to Vienna and will then go to America. In the meantime Mr. Kelly draws his salary.

Mr. Moffett, who was Wednesday appointed United States Consul to Athens, is an Episcopalian minister. He was recently appointed Consul to Beirut, Turkey, but the appointment was withdrawn at the request of the Turkish Minister, who said a Consul who is a minister is not wanted.

The Hawthorne Bulletin says the Republicans of Esmeralda County will insist on the recognition of Judge Murphy, for District Judge, should he be willing to be a candidate. He has shown his fitness for the office and his party in that section will declare for him.

The fences on the farms in the State of Maine are valued at nearly as much as all the farms and their buildings are worth; more than twice and a half the value of all the live-stock, and nearly as much as the entire capital of the State invested in manufactures.

CLEVELANDIAN.

Sentences Gathered at Random From Miss Elizabeth Cleveland's New Book.

We are liable to have notions until we get knowledge.

Let us study career as means only to the end—character.

The quality of divination is the intellectual element of altruistic faith.

No secret of hydraulics could cause a dewdrop to hang upon a rose leaf in a cube.

I never knew a good man or a good woman who was not practically an optimist.

The past is simply humanity. It is then and I, a vast congregation of thousands and I's.

An acorn in the mind is worth more than an oak forest at the end of the tongue.

The noble soul would choose rather not to be, than not to be somebody in particular.

Manners are made in the market where they are sold, and their buying and selling are mostly unconscious.

No gift can pass between human creatures so divine as the gift of recognition, for it touches upon the creative.

To be dramatic, and at the same time accurate, is a rare combination. If the one is gift the other is grace.

One who has faith in the concrete is sure to have it in the abstract; and the effect is that of optimism in the world.

We can do no braver or better thing than to bring our best thoughts to the every-day market. They will yield us unobtrusive interest.

Milton's sublime audacity of faith aerates the ponderous craft of his verse and keeps it from sinking into the abyss of theological pedantry.

Our lives are not laid out in vast, vague prairies, but in definite domestic door yards, within which we are to exercise and develop our faculties.

Herein is the significance of saying that history repeats itself. It does repeat itself, because it repeats its factors—the men and women who compose it.

With the attitude and utterance of her spirit confronting me, I cannot allow her verse to be poetry. She is the raconteur, not the vates; the scientist, not the seer.

The dullest mortal spirit must at times grope restlessly and expectantly in the outer darkness for something beyond; and this something must exist, will exist, in a true poem.

The mother makes the man, perhaps; but the wife manufactures him. Sometimes the wife in her manufacture confirms the making of the mother, sometimes counteracts it.

Whether men admit it or not, faith in ourselves and faith in our brother and sister humanity follow from our faith in God, and if that faith be allowed its full growth will each win their rightful rank.

The born poet has no agony in the deliverance of his song. The uttering is to him that soothing balm which the utterance is to the reader. It is the weeping, not the tear wept, that gives us relief.

The humanity of each of us is like some Aeolian harp constructed by the Master Musician, and laid down tenderly by him upon the sea shore, where winds from every quarter play continuously.

Each of us can so believe in humanity in general as to contribute to that pressure which constantly levers upon the race; can surround ourselves with an atmosphere optimistic rather than the contrary.

Reciprocity, constant and equal, among all His creatures is the plan of the only maker of plans whose plans never fail in the least jot or tittle. He has reserved to Himself the power to give without receiving.

Human history is nothing but one ceaseless flow of cause into effect, and of effect into cause. There is nothing but which is consequent. You and I are but the consequents of a vast tangle of antecedents in all time before.

You come from one of George Eliot's poems as from a Turkish bath of latest science and refinement, appreciative of benefit, but so battered, beaten and disjoined as to need repose before you can be conscious of refreshment.

In these days of ebb and quicksand, when agnosticism rears its stone wall in front of faith, and writes upon it in black letters the end-all and the be-all of all knowing, the unknowable, we have no need to know where God is to confirm our faith in Him.

True self-knowledge is never to be come at by burrowing in the narrow limit of our own individual thoughts, feelings and experience. We must, in order to truly see ourselves, stand before the great mirror, humanity, and, in its all-reflecting focus, behold our own proper individuality.

(An erroneous notion of the Middle Ages.) A tunnel of time, one thousand years long, through which humanity rumbled blindly in an emigrant train, the last skyrockets of the Roman Empire flaring up at one end, the first sunbeams of the Renaissance shining in at the other—and no light between—the no-account period of history.

What's in a name? A rose by any other name might smell as sweet; but a lily, if rechristened rose, would never diffuse the rose's odor, nor gain, in addition to its own spotless perfection, the deep-hearted sorcery of that enchanting, crumpled wonder, which we thrill in touching, as if it, too, had nerves, and blood, and a human heart—a rose!

(A picture of Joan of Arc.) A little pleasant maiden, doing lowly service in the cottage home at Homremy; a mail-clad maiden, leading forth her soldiers from the gates of Orleans; two faithful feet on fagots at Rouen; a radiant face uplifted to the beckoning skies; a crucifix upheld in shriveling, flame-kissed hands; a wreath of smoke for shroud, a wreck of smoke for pall, a heap of ashes, and—a franchised soul!

In this scientific age—this age of iconoclasm—it is greatly good for us to confront things rich, rare, out-of-the-common-things, above our power to comprehend, beyond our power to destroy. It is well for us who are so blind to the rose-color in our daily lives to be forced to acknowledge its existence in the imperishable canvas of history; well for us, so intensely practical as we are, to be compelled there, at least, to confront the romantic and the heroic.

Slow Work.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Sun has made a calculation that at the present rate of removals it will take eight years to fill all the offices with Democrats. In four months of a Democratic administration, ending July 4th, there were 5,108 changes in Federal offices. This is hardly 5 per cent. of the whole number. Admitting the changes to go on at the same rate, but 15 per cent. of all would be removed at the end of the first year. The Treasury Department has done some pretty good work in the way of making vacancies, thanks to the much-abused Higgins, but the Postoffice Department had, through the continued indisposition of Assistant General Hay, fallen behind. In the Treasury Department proper there had been, up to the 4th of March, 164 dismissals. In the Customs division of Treasury Department there had been 550 dismissals, and in the Internal Revenue division about the same number. The War Department has made but forty changes, and the State Department is credited with eighty-seven appointments of all grades. In the Postoffice Department over 300 appointments have been made to Presidential postoffices. The greatest havoc has been made among fourth-class postoffices, 2,700 out of 10,000 having been removed. In the Interior Department there have been about 250 changes, and in the navy very few.

Montana's Wealth.

On the prairies of Montana grow no less than thirty-three varieties of grass and clover, among which are a kind of blue aftermath of clover similar to the famous blue-grass of Kentucky, numerous meadow foxtails, orchard grasses, timothy, and, above all, the rich buffalo grass, which can be found everywhere in the greatest abundance the year round, and which cures on the ground without rotting. The cattle are turned loose to rustle and receive no further attention other than two semi-annual round-ups for the branding of calves and cutting out of marketable bevers. The wild thyme, mingled with the native grasses, gives a peculiar flavor to the meat. The available grazing land in the Territory of Montana (not counting the Indian reservations, which number nearly 28,000,000 acres of fertile land) can be set down at about 60,000,000 acres. Less than 16,000 Indians control the 28,000,000 acres, which gives an average of 1,750 acres to each buck, squaw and papoose in every tribe, or a little over two and a half square miles to each individual. Most of the available land is eminent domain, and supports over 1,000,000 head of cattle. Ten years ago there were 400 range cattle in the Territory; to-day more than 1,000,000 are scattered over the hills and through the valleys.

Prosperous Texas.

The Galveston News, speaking of the crops of the State, estimates their value this year at $125,000,000, and says that at least 1,000,000 head of fat cattle are ready for export, while in the matter of sheep and wool Texas now leads California. There is 20 per cent. more acreage in cotton this season than during the great crop year of 1881-2.

It is a matter of wonder how so many find time to take Summer vacations and spend so much money away from home, when they owe little bills all around town.

Surveyor General Preble and M. J. Curtis returned to Carson yesterday afternoon, after having surveyed and staked out the lot upon which the contractors are to build the new University.

Judge George M. Sabin, of the United States District Court, contemplates a trip to Alaska during his vacation. He has not fully determined about the matter, but thinks he will be off by August 1st.

A majority of the Commissioners in Storey county intend to stand by their original decision of leasing the Goiger Grade road to Messrs. Wolf and Hitchcock on the terms proposed in their bids.

It appears that silver coins are as scarce in many other Nevada towns as they are here. The Courier says gold coin seems to be more plentiful than silver coin in Belmont. It is often the case that a man cannot get silver in exchange for gold, and yet people living east of the Rocky mountains insist that there is too much silver in the country.

The Southern Pacific Company now sell tickets from San Francisco, Oakland and San Jose to Truckee, Summit, Soda Springs, and other points on the Sierra Nevada and return, good from Fridays till Tuesdays, inclusive, for $10, just one-half the present excursion rates. From Sacramento to the same mountain points and return will be $7.

Railroad Extension.

Saturday's Candelaria True Fissure says: The recent trip of prominent railroad officials, and the talk which has followed, seems about to bear fruit. The increase in travel and general business of the Carson and Colorado Railroad, coupled with the encouraging outlook for the future, has induced the management to carry out their original plan of extending the line from Owens Lake to near Darwin, down Panamint Valley and southward to Mojave, there connecting with the Southern Pacific. This will open out the borax fields of Panamint and Death Valleys, besides ten or more desert mining districts.

Grant's Death.

The news of the death of General Grant was made known to the people of Reno yesterday morning, and immediately the engine bell was tolled, and the flags placed at half-mast. The JOURNAL building, Gazette office, Nasby's, S. J. Hodgkinson & Co's, Thyges & Co's, Levy's, and other places of business were draped with mourning goods. Pictures of the dead hero were draped in black and exhibited in prominent show windows. Exclamations of regret were heard on every side.

No More Bullion.

Recently says the Carson Tribune, Evan Williams, in behalf of the Mexican mill and the Comstock mining companies which send their bullion to the mill, made a proposition to the Mint authorities with a view to continuing the depositing of bullion with the Mint. Mr. Williams is the heaviest depositor, sending deposits averaging $125,000 a month. He agreed to take refined commercial bars for his silver, and checks on San Francisco for his gold. A telegram was sent to Washington explaining the offer, and the reply was that the original order could not be modified. Mr. Williams declines to make deposits with the Mint when the express charges are deducted from the amounts at $3 per $1,000 and a month's deposits would amount to over $300. This virtually means the Mint has been closed down.

Valuable Supply of Carp.

Some time ago Leopold Steiner, a rancher in the Reese river section, by way of experiment, put a few German carp in a pond at Simpson's Park, in the mountains south of Austin. The Ravelle says: A few days ago he happened to be passing the pond and was surprised to find millions of little carp an inch or two long. The water was literally alive with them. It will not be long before he will be able to supply this market with fresh home-made fish. He will try trout and other varieties too.

Ore to Salt Lake.

Gallatin & Folsom yesterday shipped a car load of ore from Steamboat to Salt Lake for reduction. The ore is from the old Shannon mine, near Steamboat, and is galena, assaying $55 in silver, and carrying 67 per cent. of lead. It is the intention to ship a car load every week to either Salt Lake, Denver or San Francisco.

A Letter From Blaine.

Blaine has written a congratulatory letter to John S. Wise, recently nominated by the Republicans for Governor of Virginia, wherein he says: Many forms of aristocracy are justly condemned and even derided in a popular government, but the aristocracy of talent is one whose patents may be indefinitely multiplied with safety to the republic. If the Virginians retain their traditional respect for good blood and brains they can demonstrate it by giving their ballots for "John Sergeant, Wise." Your canvass will, I am sure be brilliant and, I believe, victorious.

McClellan and the Quartermaster.

(See Perly Poor in Boston Budget)

General McClellan was indefatigable in reorganizing the army routed at Bull Run, and he used every day ride or walk through the camps about Washington in citizen's dress, looking for abuses to be remedied. One day, as he was strolling through the rear of a regimental encampment he saw a pile of some dark-cooking mixture standing by a fire, and asked a soldier what it was. "Its coffee," said the soldier who was officiating as cook. "To me?" replied McClellan. "It looks like slop." "O," said the soldier, "It is not fit to drink, but we have to put up with it, and our other food is not a bit better." "Well whose fault is it?" he asked. "O, our quartermaster is drunk most of the time, and when he is not, he is studying how to cheat." McClellan passed on, and seeing more evidence of the dirty and slovenly manner in which the Quartermaster conducted the operations in his tent, he accosted him with the remark that the men were complaining of bad treatment from him. The Quartermaster flew into a passion, and swore it was none of his business and that he had better not come sneaking around trying to make mischief. McClellan answered him, telling him he had better be cautious how he talked. The Quartermaster replied, "who are you that you assume so much authority?" "I am George B.
